AGENCY BACKGROUND:

The Federal Housing Finance Board (Finance Board) is an independent non-appropriated fund agency in the Executive Branch of Federal Government. The Finance Board regulates the Federal Home Loan Banks (FHLBanks) for safety and soundness, and also ensures that the FHLBanks fulfill their public policy mission of facilitating residential mortgage lending in partnership with its community-based members. The FHLBank System was created in 1932 to promote home ownership and a strong home finance industry. It is a network of 12 District Banks that provide lending, deposit, and other services to mortgage lending institutions. The System's Office of Finance issues debt in the form of consolidated obligations to facilitate the funding needs of the FHLBanks. The members of the FHLBank System originate and hold a significant portion of the nation's home mortgages. Membership includes thrift institutions (savings and loan associations, savings banks and cooperative banks), commercial banks, and credit unions as well as a small number of insurance companies. The FHLBank System has combined assets of approximately $1 trillion.

The Office of Supervision (OS) is responsible for carrying out the Finance Board's statutory duty to ensure that the FHLBanks operate safely and soundly, fulfill their housing finance mission, and remain adequately capitalized and able to access the capital markets. The Office of Supervision performs these functions through on-site examinations and off-site monitoring of the FHLBanks and the Office of Finance. Other responsibilities of the Office of Supervision include regulatory and policy analysis. This work includes, but is not limited to planning, conducting, and evaluating long-range projects and proposals for all agency programs relating to the Finance Board's supervision and oversight of the FHLBank System.

The Research Division provides support to the Office of Supervision on safety and soundness and mission related issues. The Division also assists in the development of regulations. The Division is expected to contribute primarily to the development of policy related to capital requirements, including risk-based capital requirements, capital plans, mortgage purchase programs, new business proposals, and mission related policy in general. The Division advises the senior executives of the Office of Supervision and the Board of Directors regarding comprehensive FHLBank System financial management and mission regulations, as well as economic, financial and regulatory issues facing the FHLBanks and the FHLBank System. The Division conducts special studies, contributes to the drafting of regulations, regulatory interpretations, legislative changes affecting the FHLBanks, advisory bulletins, and examiner guidance. The Division provides assistance to examiners and other Finance Board staff as needed.

DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES: The Economist (grade 12 and 13) / Senior Economist (grade 14) conducts policy analysis and research under the supervision or general direction of the Associate Director, Research Division. Provides economic analysis of and recommendations incorporating developments in one or more of the following areas: economics, finance, capital markets, housing, and mortgage market developments. Supports analysis with applicable economic and financial models, econometric methods and statistical techniques. Presents work in written and oral presentations that are acceptable to a wide audience. Identifies significant and emerging risks in the FHLBank System such as market, interest rate, operational and credit risks. Provides technical advice and guidance on results from economic, financial, and/or statistical modeling and analysis. Conducts studies and research on the performance of the FHLBanks or on other related housing finance topics. The results of the incumbent's analyses, research and recommendations are used by Finance Board officials to support the development, revision, or interpretation of statutes, regulations, policies, and agency guidance affecting or governing the FHLBanks, the FHLBank System, and/or the Finance Board.
